

Rural Housing and Economic Development Call for Proposals

DEADLINE: September 21, 2015

Overview and Issue

NARDeP (National Agricultural and Rural Development Policy Center) seeks proposals for a book chapter and policy brief describing research and/or outreach programs that address problems associated with housing and economic development in rural areas of the United States. Inadequate housing in many rural areas tends to impair opportunities for healthy living and suppresses economic development. We have special interest on work from the disciplines of economics, family and consumer science, planning, sociology, or related fields relative to:

1. The availability of affordable, safe, and stable housing for vulnerable populations, especially those residing in rural areas, areas of persistent poverty, and in Native American communities.
2. The connection between adequate, affordable, quality housing stock and economic development and economic resilience among rural populations, and vice versa.
3. The development of programs to increase the health and safety of homes and improve energy efficiency.
4. Analysis of homelessness in different county types along the rural-urban continuum.

Expected Outputs

Persons whose proposals are accepted will be asked to do the following:

- Write a book chapter of less than 8,000 words. This will be due on January 31, 2016. Some or all of the Regional Rural Development Center Directors will serve as editors in compiling the chapters provided by all participants into a book. The directors will then seek a publisher for this book.
- Write a NARDeP policy brief. The policy brief will provide a forum for you to succinctly state the major policy outcomes described in your chapter. This will be due February 29, 2016. Please see nardep.info for examples of published policy briefs. If accepted, you will receive submission guidelines for the policy brief.
- Potentially serve with the Regional Rural Development Center Directors in forming a task force to explore ways to advance efforts across research, teaching, and Extension in this realm.

Proposal Submission Guidelines

Proposals are due by close of business Monday, September 21, 2015.

The items listed below are required to complete and submit your proposal. Incomplete proposals will not be considered. Email ONE document to don.albrech@usu.edu and include the following pages in the order listed:

- Author's Name and daytime contact information including telephone number, email address, job title, organization, mailing address
- Title of your proposal (limited to 12 words)
- Abstract describing your proposal and not to exceed 500 words
- Author's Vita (summary version, not to exceed two pages)

Deadline for Submissions

Submissions are due by close of business Monday, September 21, 2015.

Selected authors will be notified on or before Friday, October 16, 2015.

Evaluation Criteria

Proposals will be evaluated by the Regional Rural Development Center Directors based upon their quality, relevance to at least one of the four issues listed under 'Overview and Issues,' and author experience and qualifications.

Questions

Please direct your questions regarding this Call for Proposals to:

Don E. Albrecht
Director, Western Rural Development Center
Associate Director, NARDeP
Regional Coordinator, CAPE
Utah State University
don.albrecht@usu.edu

ENGAGING A NATIONAL NETWORK OF EXPERTS AROUND AGRICULTURAL AND RURAL DEVELOPMENT POLICY ISSUES

NARDeP is a policy research center organized by the Regional Rural Development Centers (RRDC). NARDeP develops products that are scientifically sound and politically neutral to assist policy makers in making decisions.

ADVANCING THE ECONOMIC HEALTH OF RURAL AMERICA.

The Regional Rural Development Centers are a trusted source of economic and community development data, decision tools, education, and guidance in our nation's rural communities.

The four Regional Rural Development Center's are:

Western Rural Development Center

North Central Regional Center for Rural Development

Southern Rural Development Center

Northeast Regional Center for Rural Development

The Regional Rural Development Centers (RRDC) are regionally focused centers funded by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) National Institute of Food and Agriculture (NIFA) to strengthen the capacity of local citizens to guide the future of their rural communities. Each Center links the research and Extension capacity of regional land-grant universities with local decision-makers to address a wide range of rural development issues. Any opinions, findings, conclusions, or recommendations expressed in this publication are those of the authors and do not necessarily reflect the views of the U.S. Department of Agriculture or their host institutions. The RRDC does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, disability, or veteran status.

STAY CONNECTED

wrdc.usu.edu